Society for Free Radical Research - Europe

The Society for Free Radical Research - Europe (SFRR-E), founded in 1988, is an international society registered as a charity in the United Kingdom, and a member of the International Society for Free Radical Research. SFRR-E aims to advance knowledge on the role of free radicals and redox biology processes in biomedical sciences, focusing on industrial and medical relevance for the benefit of the public. To this end, the society provides a forum for scientific discussion and knowledge dissemination through the SFRR-E website, newsletters, annual meetings and outreach activities, such as summer schools and webinars. The Society strongly supports young scientists by facilitating participation in all activities. To meet these challenges, SFRR-E receives and utilizes donations, subscriptions and funds from individual persons, private entities and public organizations. Society members have access to all activities at reduced rates. SFRR-E is managed by an elected Executive and Council.

Dear Colleagues,

we are excited to announce that the 2024 SFRR-E annual meeting will focus on the theme „From Molecules to Tissues: Redox Biology in Action“, and will be held from June 4-6, 2024, at the Movenpick Hotel Istanbul Asia Airport. The importance of imaging tools in redox biology cannot be overstated - after all, seeing is believing.

This year’s meeting on redox biology and imaging will serve as a global platform for experts to discuss the latest breakthroughs in redox biology and medicine, with a special focus on imaging techniques and redox tools and their applications in various biological systems. The event will encompass plenary lectures, symposia, and poster sessions covering a wide range of topics related to redox biology, medicine, and imaging. Special sessions dedicated to young researchers and early career scientists will offer them a platform to showcase their research. Moreover, attendees will have the opportunity to participate in two dedicated satellite meetings: The satellite meeting at Üsküdar University and a workshop at the Labs@Location Center of Zeiss at Istanbul Medipol University, which will provide hands-on experience with cutting-edge imaging technologies and tools.

As always, we will ensure that the meeting is accompanied by social events allowing networking and collaboration in a relaxed and enjoyable atmosphere. We encourage you to take the time to explore Istanbul and all it has to offer, from its rich history and culture to its world-renowned cuisine.

The 2024 SFRR-E annual meeting promises to be exciting and informative, highlighting the latest breakthroughs in the redox field as well as the importance of imaging tools in redox biology. We welcome you to Istanbul and the Movenpick Hotel in Kurtköy.

Yours sincerely,

Emrah Eroğlu (Chair) & Nesrin Kartal Özer (Honoray Chair)
